

REV. DR. NICHOLAS PEARCE

The Reverend Dr. Nicholas Pearce currently serves as Assistant Pastor of the historic Apostolic Church of God on Chicago's South Side, where he is responsible for overseeing the Christian education and discipleship of Apostolic's 18,000-member congregation. Beyond the pulpit, he is also an award-winning professor of management on the faculty of Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management and the founder & chief executive officer of The Vocati Group, a global executive advisory consultancy. He has been privileged to serve leaders of corporations, social impact organizations, governments, and communities of faith across six continents as a strategic adviser, leadership trainer, and executive coach.

Dr. Pearce has been serving the church since the tender age of three, was baptized at the age of six, was called to the ministry at the age of seven, and started institutional ministry at the age of seventeen under his mentor and childhood pastor, the late Bishop Arthur M. Brazier. God is raising him up as one of his generation's most trusted and influential voices, and continues to use him to impact tens of thousands of lives across cultural, generational, and denominational boundaries through the power of the Holy Spirit.
